Brooklyn Renters Are Prioritizing Lifestyle—and Location

Brooklyn continues to lead the way in NYC rental preferences. In 2025, over 60% of renters looking to move within the five boroughs say Brooklyn is their first choice. Clinton Hill and Bed-Stuy are especially appealing due to their artistic energy, unique architecture, and ease of access to the rest of the city.

575 Classon Avenue Is Close to It All

Situated at the crossroads of Clinton Hill and Bed-Stuy, 575 Classon Avenue offers unbeatable convenience. The building is close to transit, with the G, A, and C subway lines just blocks away. Current NYC commuter data shows that residents living within five minutes of the subway save an average of 35 minutes daily.

No Fees, No Worries

In a city where hidden costs are the norm, 575 Classon Avenue stands apart with no fees and transparent pricing. Tenants enjoy clean, modern apartments with utilities included — heat, hot water, and more.

A Rental With Character and Comfort

Each unit offers original pre-war touches, high ceilings, and large windows that create bright, livable spaces. In 2025, surveys show that over 70% of renters now prioritize sunlight access and rental units with character over square footage alone. Here, you can have both.

Excellent Views, Everyday

From upper-floor units, residents enjoy excellent views of Brooklyn treetops, skyline edges, and classic brownstone blocks — visual access to light and landscape linked to improved mood and productivity, a key benefit for remote workers and creatives.

Bed-Stuy Energy, Clinton Hill Calm

At 575 Classon Avenue, you get the best of both worlds. The buzz of Bed-Stuy meets the quiet confidence of Clinton Hill. Walk to cultural landmarks, hop on a Citi Bike, or hit nearby Prospect Park on weekends.

What You Get
